

MISTI PERUVIAN JAZZ PROJECT

The Misti Peruvian Jazz Project is a New Jersey/New York-based ensemble co-led by Peruvian musicians Sofía Carrasco (tenor saxophone) and Víctor Sotomayor (piano). Rooted in a deep respect for Peru's rich musical traditions, their original compositions fuse modern jazz with Andean, Afro-Peruvian, and Creole sounds—resulting in music that is both soulful and rhythmically compelling.

OUR MUSIC

Their debut album Alma Escondida is a genre-blending exploration of identity and heritage, featuring original works inspired by the tunantada, a traditional genre from central Peru.

LIVE PERFORMANCES

The Misti Peruvian Jazz Project performs as a quartet (saxophone, keyboard, acoustic bass, and drum set), with adaptable formats for festivals, cultural events, and intimate concert series. Their performances are both musically engaging and culturally enriching, ideal for audiences who seek a fresh global perspective on jazz.
